

Bf 109 losses in Norway

Identified Luftwaffe Bf 109 losses in Norway – early variants. The following list is not intended to be fully comprehensive; rather, it contains listings for which the majority of pertinent details are known (pilot, aircraft subtype, WNr, unit, and code). It is sorted by subtype, and two additional entries with unknown serial numbers have been included, as their codes and pilots are known. This information is an invaluable aid to researchers as well as modelers who wish to build something different. Obviously, certain details are not included such as camouflage patterns, etc, but an educated guess can be made as to the style and colors used based on photos of similar aircraft in the same theatre of operations at the same time. The data below has been extracted from information compiled by Olve Dybvig of the Luftwaffe SIG Norway (<http://www.luftwaffe.no>), as well as information from Jim Perry. Any errors in transcription are solely the responsibility of the author.
